

Acknowledgements

First of all, I would like to extend my heartfelt thanks to Dr. Manjit Das, Professor of Economics, Bodoland University for his enthusiastic and valuable supervision of my PhD thesis. Without his encouragement and able guidance, it would not have been possible for me to complete the research in time.

I am thankful to the staff of libraries of Bodoland University, Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi, Gauhati University, North East Hill University, for giving me permission to use their books, journals and government reports. I am also grateful to the officers and staff of the Council Head of Department, Forest Department Bodoland Territorial Council, Kokrajhar, Haltugaon Forest Division, Kachugaon Forest Division and Parbathjhora Forest Division for their valuable help and cooperation. Again, I am thankful to the staff of Director of Economic and Statistics, BTC for supplying me secondary facts and data.

I convey my sincere thanks to the forest villagers those who have helped me a lot by supplying primary data and providing and sharing their traditional knowledge of forest and biodiversity conservation.

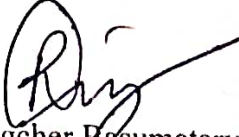

I am also indebted to my colleagues of Department of Economics, Bodoland University, for their sincere cooperation. I am also grateful to the Bodoland University authorities for providing for all necessary help and assistance during the period of my research.

I am ever grateful to my father Sri Tarini Basumatary and my mother Smti. Rwimali Basumatary for their blessing and also my wife Dr. Nandeswari Boro and my sons Ramanath Basumatary and Rakesh Basumatary, for their constant encouragement and forbearance.

Last but not least, I would ever grateful to my friends and well wishers who have directly and indirectly helping me to complete my research work.
